Who are we?

Tomplay is a leading innovator in the digital music industry, offering interactive sheet music for musicians of all levels. With a mission to transform the way people learn and enjoy playing music, we combine technology with creativity to deliver exceptional user experiences.

Thanks to unique technology, the interactive scores scroll automatically on-screen, creating an immersive, concert hall experience. With features such as controlling the speed of the score's recording, looping selected passages and self-recording, Tomplay makes learning music simpler, more effective and more fun.

The Tomplay app is used by more than 1.5M musicians in 157 countries. The company has entered into an exclusive distribution partnership with Yamaha, the world's largest instrument manufacturer, as well as key licensing agreements with dozens of publishers, positioning Tomplay's platform as the leader in interactive music learning. Job role and responsibilities:

As part of a cross-functional team including our web lead developer, database engineer and app developer, you will contribute to the ongoing development and maintenance of our website. This is a dynamic role involving front-end, with a primary focus on delivering engaging, modern user experiences. Your main responsibility will be the following:

- Develop and support clean, W3C-compliant front-end code that aligns with stakeholder specifications. Prioritize web standards, semantics, usability, accessibility, and performance optimization.
- Build adaptive web pages for desktop, tablet and mobile using custom CSS solutions and frameworks like Bootstrap.
- Work on supporting and implementing interactive musical instruments using JavaScript.
- Implement analytics tagging and ensure accurate data capture.
- Collaborate on the selection and implementation of development tools, technologies, and processes.
- Serve as a key point of contact for technical projects across teams — participating in requirement gathering, execution, and deployment phases.

What we require from you:

Strong skills in HTML5 and CSS3: Able to create responsive, cross-browser layouts without relying on frameworks like Bootstrap, Tailwind, or similar.

Excellent command of Vanilla JavaScript (ES6+): Comfortable working without libraries or frameworks such as React, Angular, or Vue.

Solid understanding of SEO best practices: Includes proper heading structure, page speed optimization, and content accessibility.

Experience in site performance optimization: Techniques such as minimizing DOM usage and implementing lazy loading of resources.

Ability to work with legacy code: Capable of understanding structure, refactoring, and maintaining existing solutions.

Experience with Alpine.js (or similar lightweight JavaScript frameworks for streamlined logic).

Recent hands-on experience with Vanilla JavaScript is a must — we are not considering candidates who only work with frameworks or haven't used Vanilla JS recently.

Familiarity with performance optimization tools such as YSlow and Google PageSpeed Insights.

Strong working knowledge of Git for version control.

Excellent English communication skills — precise, open-minded, and solution-oriented. A proactive and collaborative mindset is highly valued.

Experience with AWS CloudFront and S3 is a plus, but not required.

Familiarity with Laravel's Blade templating engine is a plus, but not required.
